About Songbird

Songbird was invented by the Sarnoff Corporation in Princeton, New Jersey (formerly RCA Labs), the same technology lab that has created some of the world’s leading consumer technology innovations, such as HDTV and Digital Satellite TV. The Sarnoff scientists who developed Songbird believed, as we do, that a hearing device shouldn’t need to be expensive and difficult to both purchase and maintain. They went to work on something different—a device that could be high-quality, affordable, and easy to get and use. The disposable hearing aid was born.

Songbird manufactures its new flexfit™ in North Brunswick, New Jersey and is now available by phone or online.
